Keep In Circulation
 Not so many years ago, if you had high blood pressure (or hypertension) the doctor told you to go to bed and stay there.

Today, instead of giving up, you can learn to live with the condition. With good medical care and sensible living habits, the Columbus Tuberculosis Society says you will probably carry on comfortably and usefully to a ripe old age.

Hypertension affects about one out of every five adults. It is usually a mild condition in which the blood pressure remains more or less constantly at a high level. Because of a narrowing of the small arteries, the heart has to work harder than it should to keep the blood circulating at a normal rate.

Under this strain, the heart muscle enlarges. The danger is that hardening of the artery walls, or arteriosclerosis, may take place and, finally, the closing of some of the blood vessels.

There is no single method, according to the Columbus Tuberculosis Society, for preventing the usual type of high blood pressure. In some cases it is heredity; in others, it is the result of a disease, such as kidney disease. Being overweight may increase chances of developing high blood pressure. Maintaining average or slightly below average weight is a wise precaution and is especially important for people with a family history of high blood pressure.

Although there is no specific treatment for hypertension, surgery, drugs, psychotherapy, and special diets are being used where indicated with encouraging results.

Because there may be no visible signs or symptoms of the condition, it is important to have a regular check-up by your family doctor. If you do have high blood pressure, you want to know it. By following medical advice you can "keep in circulation" with less risk of serious heart disease.

Dr. W. W. Wiant, superintendent of the Columbus district, will preside the service and conduct the dedication. Mr. Zinn will present the building and James Smith will accept it. The bronze plaque will be unveiled by C. L. Brown and read by C. R. Wetherholt, the Sunday school superintendent.

At the head of the procession which will tour the addition will be the individuals and class representatives who have made special gifts to the hall and church. These furnishings have cost $10,000. There will be money raising as everything is paid for now.

We read recently that serious-minded young men are slow about getting married these days. Perhaps it's because they can't figure out how they can support a wife and the government on one income.
